Adding RSS Feeds to Blackboard

presented by Jessica Morris Information Technology

What are RSS feeds?

RSS stands for Really Simple Syndication. An RSS feed is a tool that allows websites and other online media services to regularly and automatically share their most recent content with their viewers. The feeds are especially helpful for sites that post a lot of content such as news publications and blogs.

What are RSS readers?

RSS readers (such as Google Reader, My Yahoo, and Feedly) allow users to add multiple feeds to one website. This makes it easier to stay up-to-date with any favorite websites and publications.

How can you use RSS feeds in your course?

Some possibilities include:

- Sharing your favorite online resources and publications with students
- Encouraging students to stay current in their discipline
- Using key websites as required readings
- Asking students to incorporate timely articles into course discussions or group activities
- Creating feeds for keywords related to course units or topics
- Incorporating your blog entries (created outside of Blackboard) into your course

Important Tips for Using RSS Feeds in Your Course

- The content will update automatically, so make sure that you only select websites that will update with material that will be appropriate for your course. (For example, you may not want to add a feed to a YouTube channel that may include inappropriate videos.)
- Since the feed calls to external websites, regularly check your feed to make sure it is working and that none of the links are broken.
- If the feed does break, re-generate the code for the feed and copy and paste over the existing code in the Blackboard item.
- Provide students with clear expectations and instructions for how they should use the course feeds. Are they required or optional? Do they relate to a specific assignment or activity? Is there a preferred venue for notifying others in the class if one of the articles is especially relevant?

◀ Backstory

Have you ever heard of “Hank”

...As in “Hank DeVincent Field”? It was dedicated in honor of the former La Salle baseball star in April, 1978. Henry was born and raised in the Olney section of Philadelphia. After playing for Olney High School, he entered La Salle College (class of 1956). He gained All-American honors in his junior and senior years in the outfield and hit .400. After graduation, Henry was accepted to the medical program at Temple University’s School of Medicine.

Dr. DeVincent completed orthopedic surgery residency with Dr. John Royal Moore, working at Temple University Hospital and the Shriners Hospital for Crippled Children. Afterwards he served as Chief of Orthopedics at Holy Redeemer Hospital. Dr. DeVincent is a highly respected member of the La Salle community and has received awards such as the John Finley Award (1998) and the Holroyd Award (1987). He has also served on the University Board of Trustees and was inducted into the La Salle Hall of Athletes for 1967.

Dr. Hank DeVincent, '56, and his wife, Fran, hold plaque and his now-retired college baseball number as mementoes of ceremonies dedicating college's baseball field in his name. Also participating were Brother President Patrick Ellis, F.S.C., Ph.D., and athletic director Bill Bradshaw, '69.
